INT HIGH SCHOOL

Premiere Volume

A stylized illustration of a school building with a flat roof and a large, rectangular section. The building is situated on a hill with a wooden plank walkway leading up to it. To the right of the building is a large, dark, stylized tree with a thick trunk and a large, rounded canopy. The sky is filled with large, wavy, stylized clouds. The text "of The Centralian" is written in a cursive font on the left side of the page.

Dedication

We dedicate this book to all those who have put their time, thought, skill, money, hope loyalty or faith into Central Dauphin.

Foreword

This year has in truth been the premiere or initial showing of Central Dauphin High School. We have for this reason chosen "Premiere" as the theme of our yearbook. We have endeavored in this book to create a comparison or parallel between the beginning of our school and the establishment of the customs and ways of life which we have inherited as citizens of America. Herein are included comparisons of firsts or premières in the development of our country to the firsts in the developement of our school.

Our thanks to . . .

We, the first class to graduate from Central Dauphin High School, wish to extend our most sincere gratitude to the advisers of our yearbook. We realize that without their combined efforts, we would not have been able to achieve our goal.

The process of producing any yearbook is a monumental task, but the job of organizing the first yearbook in a school's history, is almost beyond description.

Through-out the long hours of work, Miss Lida Ann Swope, Mr. William Benson, and Mr. W. George Morrow have been with us faithfully guiding, advising and directing our staffs.

We can never thank these three enough for their help. Perhaps this yearbook will be sufficient thanks to them. We certainly hope they have enjoyed working with us as much as we have with them, and will remember what we have accomplished together.

Senior Class Officers 1956

Seated L. to R.—Harold Waddell, Vice-President; James Bender, President; Frank Flickinger, Treasurer.
Standing L. to R.—Marilee Karins, Historian; Kay Stewart, Secretary.

Senior Class Advisors

Seated L. to R.—E. Kathryn Brown, Sara Bowman, Eliza Armstrong. Standing L. to R.— William F. Morris, John J. Magera, Dante A. Defalco, Harold J. Thomas, Joseph M. Brightbill.

We, the senior class of 1956, wish to express our sincere gratitude to each advisor who gave us his unlimited time and much needed aid throughout the entire year. Their patience and relentless energy attributed much to the success of our class and their faithful guidance will always be remembered.

Curtain Going Up

Small in its production yet immense in precedential value was the dramatic presentation that made its debut in a gloomy Philadelphian warehouse in 1749. This was the American premiere of the theatre. Some two hundred years later came another premiere . . . local in interest far reaching in educational import. This production was begun by a group known as the Pennsylvania Economy League. The production which was begun at that time dealt with the drama of education particularly, a jointure of suburban Harrisburg schools.

The large committee of producers of the spectacle that was the Central Dauphin Joint School System, took two years to gather and many more to plan for the great opening. The three main producers were finally chosen; Kermit M. Sover, Raymond Keim, Arthur Shoop . . . Experts in their field all, and eager to get on with the show.

Following myriads of plans and sketches and diagrams, the makers of the set began their toil, building the backdrops, the props, the scenery that are so much an integral factor in any production. Hammers and noisy buzz saws mingled their voices with those of the cement mixers and carpenter's tools . . . and the set which was designed by the notable Edmond Good began to take visible form and vague meaning.

Just about the time when the workers were completing the preliminaries of building, a sneak preview of the gigantic drama was staged on Sunday afternoon on March 20, 1955. For the first time, an audience was given a glimpse of the production that was in the making. At this cornerstone laying ceremony the crowd applauded and praised the little they saw, and left the scene in thoughtfulness, for the climax was yet to come.

While the set was still in the process of making, the producers selected their large staff of directors. Some of the directors came from lesser local productions, others were brought in from elsewhere. After sifting and filtering the Qualities of all, a league of 52 directors were decided upon. Great was their task, for they were given the assignment of shaping and molding the talents of over nine hundred actors, two hundred fifty of whom form the stardom of the great premiere.

To help both producers and directors in smoothing out the rough spots of the production a board of associate directors, named the Student Advisory Council, met for the first time on October 10, 1954. They were all cast members, working not only as actors, but coordinators of the presentation. Through this select group the opinions of the entire cast were voiced; the details that concerned them were arranged and discussed.

Organization of the production was now nearly completed . . . the producers, the directors, the associate directors, the cast, the scenery makers, the builders of the set . . . they were all working as one now, preparing for the first day of real rehearsal. The script had been completed, each actor was fitted into a distinct part in the program. Directors planned their work and made ready for the beginning of the long period of rehearsal.

At 9:00 A.M. on September 7, 1955 the rehearsal started. Preliminaries didn't take long and soon everyone was laboring in accord. Behind the scenes workmen were still toiling over the incomplete set, putting on the wealth of "finishing touches." But the real work was in the dressing rooms and on the stage where the actors were being groomed for their parts. Always guiding, always teaching were the directors; studying and practising for endless hours was the cast.

Although numerous were the hours of hard work, there was also an abundance of real fun and laughter, real pleasure of working together. There were get togethers, dances, athletic events, all organizations within an organization.

But for awhile, let's put the spotlight on the actors who, by merit of their previous experience, held the star parts . . . they were the seniors. Excelling in so many ways, this group of over two hundred persons set an example for the younger, less experienced ones to follow. They organized as a group during December, elected Jim Bender as head and Harold Waddell, Frank Flickinger, Kay Stewart and Marilee Karins as other officers. Under the direction of these officers in coordination with the Senior Executive Board, the stars prepared for their first major party—The Christmas Ball.

Many such activities followed suit thereafter, the seniors, the stars, sometimes leading, sometimes following, but always in the spotlight.

Above these lighter activities, however, stood the real purpose . . . preparing for that splendid opening night—the Premiere. Long had the actors studied their parts, long had the directors assumed their duties, and now comes the time when the producers proudly present to the public the fruits of their labor. For all the world to see are the stars of Central Dauphin High School as they stage their drama, make their debut as a graduating class, stand in the floodlights of commencement and receive their educational Academy Awards, their diplomas, recognition for a job well done.

And That's Central Dauphin's bow to society . . . Its Premiere on the Broadway of Education.

It's over now; the spectacle of the opening. The long first run has been successfully completed for the season. But the show will be back next year with new leading men and women. And we who will no longer be in the cast turn in retrospect . . . remembering the nights of study, the laurels we won, the laughter, the work and fun. As the last stage light is dimmed and the last person leaves the dressing room, holding our sheepskin "Oscar" in our hands we gaze at an empty theatre with but one light on . . . EXIT . . . Exit from this drama into another of a much larger scope; entrance onto the stage of life.

Class Will

We, the Senior Class of Central Dauphin High School, being of sound (?) mind and body, do hereby ordain and establish this to be our final will and testament:

To the class of 1957 we leave our beat up books and furniture.

To the class of 1958 we leave our hope that by the time you are seniors the school will have new "Cafeteria Records."

And to the Faculty of Central Dauphin we hope that all our past bad behaviors be forgotten and only the good one be remembered.

The following Seniors leave their contributions:

Carolyn Schalvin's gossip is given to Clara McKee.

John Rowe's love for Rutherford goes to Ben Hetzel.

Ted Russ leaves his car to "The Yellow Cab Company."

Sandy Peck's last name goes to Sandra Sheesley.

Sandy Kovall's jitterbug steps go to Vivian Kohr.

Martin Lane leaves himself to Carol McEldowney.

To Jeanne Cassel goes Dee Loncar's "natural" blonde hair.

Tommy Lucas leaves his hair to Mr. Benedek.

Dave Hauer leaves himself to Room 128.

Sandra Dailey and John Mellott leave, well, they'll just leave together.

Paul Hill leaves his Ford Convertible to Bob Keath.

Clark Hoffman leaves his love for the Magnuson family to Nancy Ryder.

Nettie Glosser's size 24 skirt is willed to Helen Balmer.

To Connie Ingram goes Betty Hammaker's ability to beat up her own hockey teammates.

Betty Garman's quietness goes to Miss Stamets' clicking fingers.

Pat Eby leaves her sweaters to SoSo Thomas.

Ralph Valentine leaves his "southern accent in Mrs. Seip's class" to all those who will get her for English next year.

Doris Smith's birthday goes to John Sgrignoli.

To Curtis Vineyard goes Donald Smith's wrestling ability.

Conrad Schenfelt's nickname "Sleepy" to the only inheritant, his brother, John.

George Noll's strength is given to Bill Masterson.

To Bob Bretz goes Marshall Reams' "way with women."

Faculty

and Administration

Kermit M. Stover

You, the Class of 1956, have not only the honor of being the first class to be graduated from the Central Dauphin High School, but also have the honor of publishing this book, the first yearbook of the Central Dauphin High School. Your yearbook is a valuable historical document for this school. It records for future years the beginning activities of a school which I believe will receive recognition as one of the leading high schools of the State.

Everyone is appreciative of the leadership which you have exerted in establishing many of the future customs and traditions of this school as well as the high standard in curricular and extra curricular activities which you have established during this first year of operation.

You, as the first alumni of the school, can and undoubtedly will give your support through organized as well as individual effort to the development of even higher standards and further improvements for your Alma Mater. Your interest and your loyalty to Central Dauphin as alumni members will continue to challenge future pupils to greater achievements. I, therefore, urge you to organize an Alumni Association for the school and to continue the fine leadership which you displayed so magnificently this year in the interest of your school.

We are proud of you, as the first graduating class, and of this yearbook in the same way that we are proud of the Central Dauphin High School.

I, therefore, congratulate you, the first graduates of our school, for your achievements in high school and extend to each one of you the best wishes of your Alma Mater for happiness and success in your everyday living.

Kermit M. Stover
Supervising Principal

Arthur R. Shoop

To The Members of the Graduating Class:

The Class of 1956 is singularly honored. Not only are you the first Senior Class to be graduated from Central Dauphin High School; you also enjoy the rare distinction of having assisted in the development of each of the ideals and traditions of your school.

To each member of the Graduating Class—Congratulations! Your response to the many problems which confronted you will seldom be surpassed.

With the hope that current aspirations will find fulfillment in lives dedicated to both the spiritual and the material growth of our civilization, I remain

Cordially, Your Friend,
ARTHUR R. SHOOP

To the class of 1956:

The Class of 1956 is most fortunate in being the first to graduate from the newly organized Central Dauphin High School. Your participation and leadership have made possible the organization of new school activities and have aided in setting high standards for Central Dauphin that will become traditional. I congratulate you on your interest and service in the varied school projects and especially in the publication of this, our first yearbook.

May you reap the greatest possible educational benefits during your one year in Central Dauphin High School and after graduation, may you ever be a loyal supporter of your Alma Mater.

Today's youth has many adjustments to make in this changing world. One of the most important is the development of a saleable skill by which he or she may become economically sufficient. The students of Central Dauphin High School are fortunate to have a wide variety of courses in which they may specialize to develop their vocational ambitions. In our curriculum, there are courses in Vocational Agriculture, Vocational Homemaking, Distributive Education, and several phases of Trade and Industrial Education. It is our sincere wish that the graduates of these courses may find successful employment in their chosen field, and become responsible citizens in the world of tomorrow.

Student Council

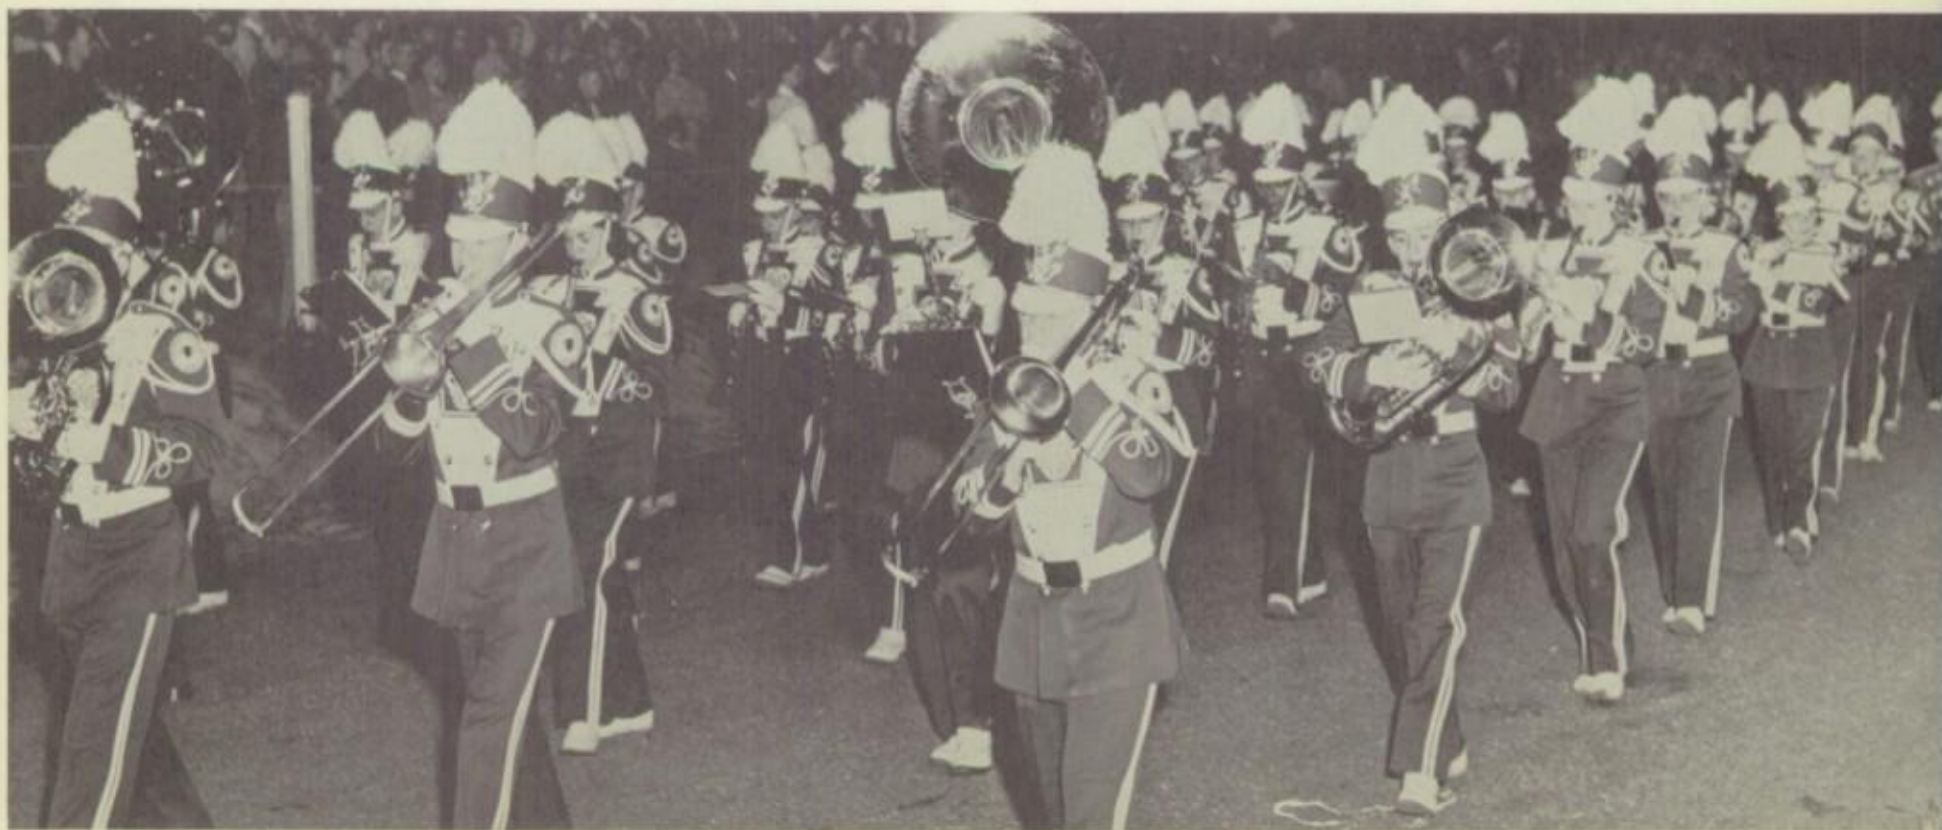

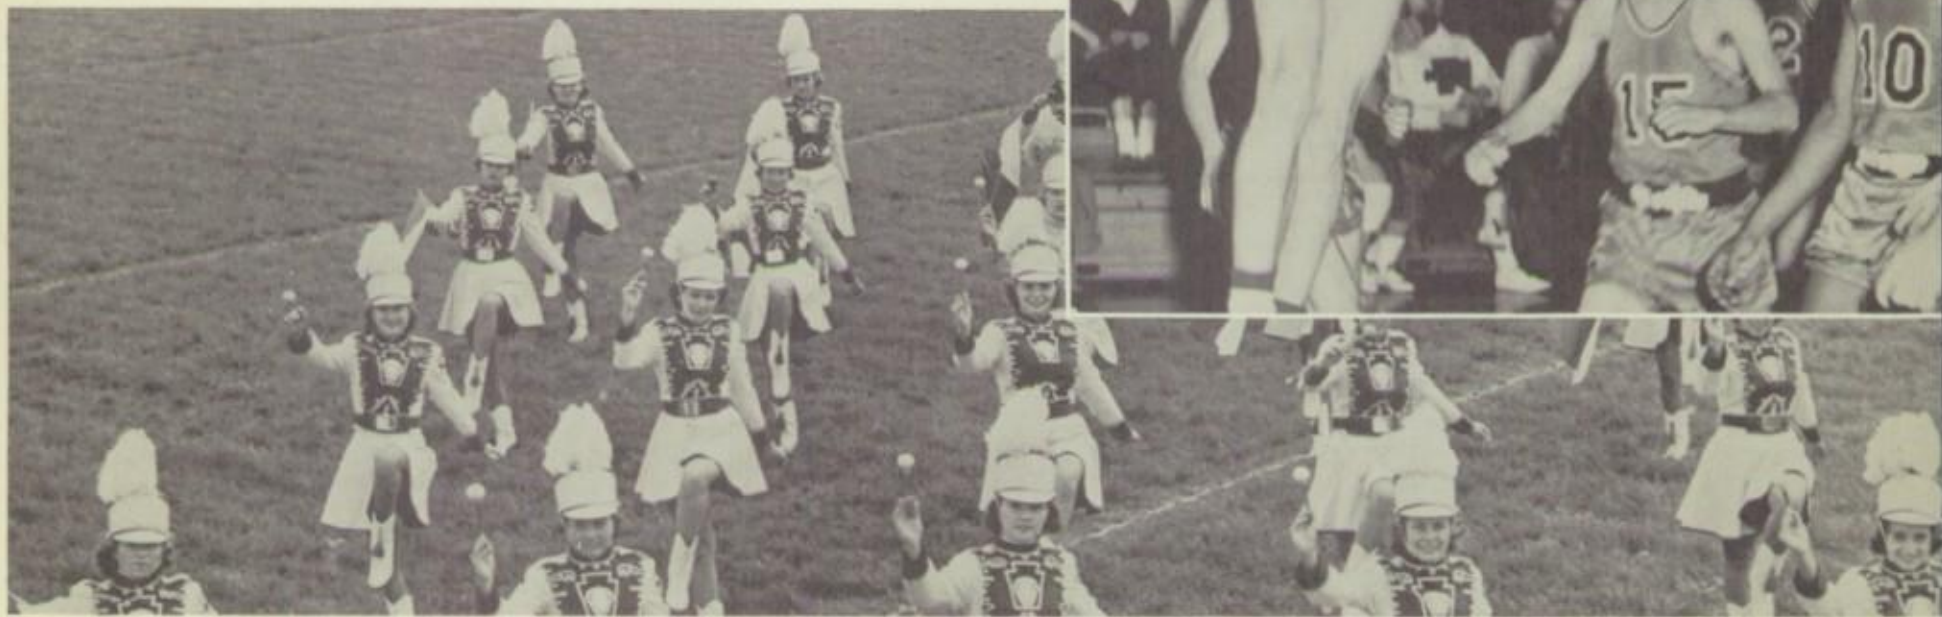

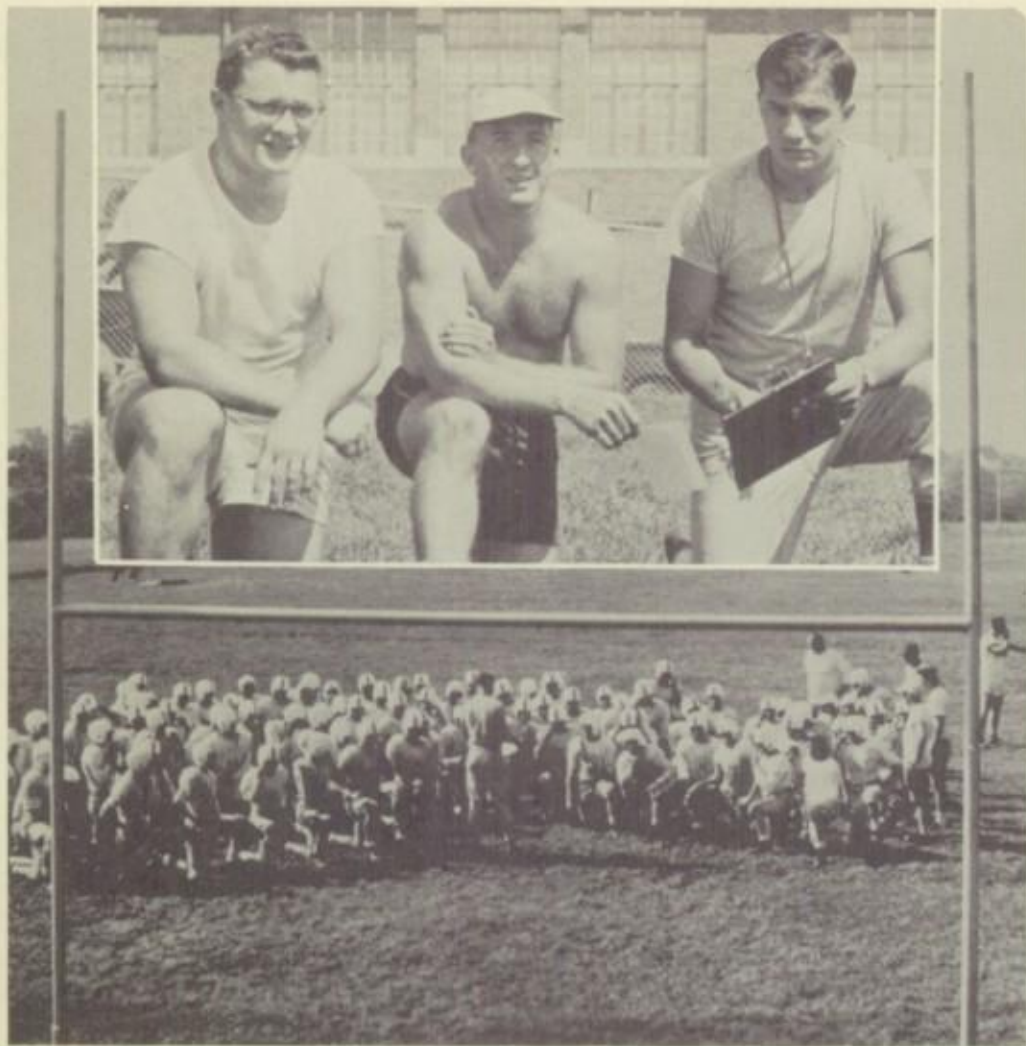

In the beginning of our junior year when to most of us Central Dauphin was merely a dream, representatives from each of the schools to be joined together were meeting once a month, discussing problems which had to be settled by the coming September. They decided such things, as school colors, nickname, football cheers, style of jackets and other problems at hand. This group was known as the Student Advisory Council.

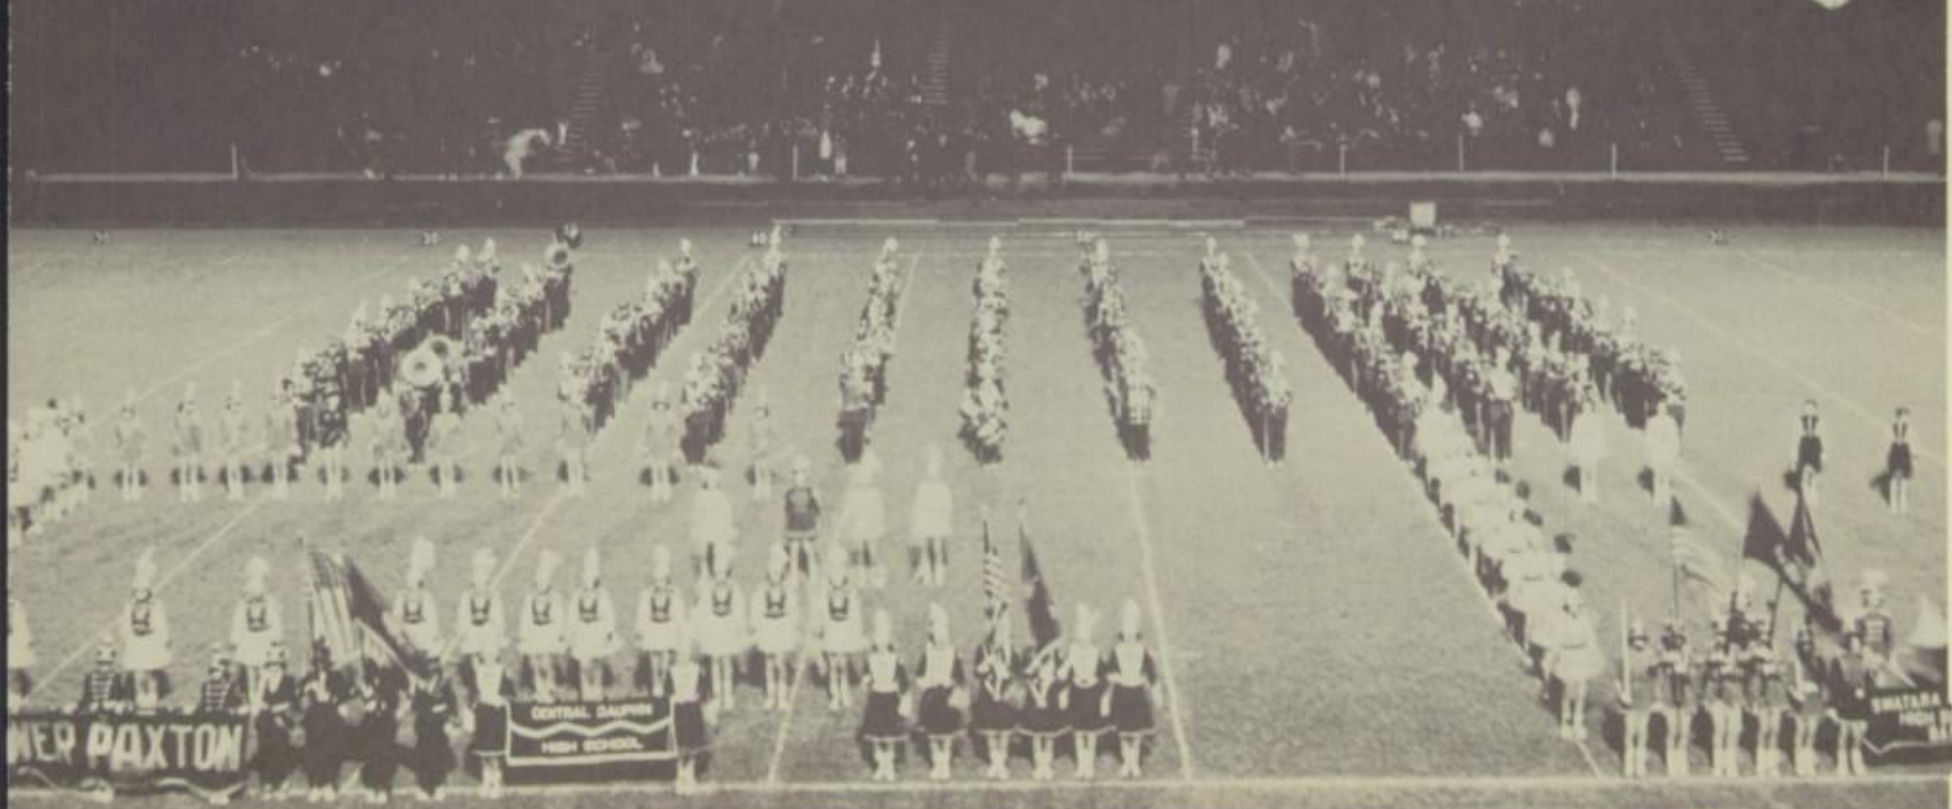

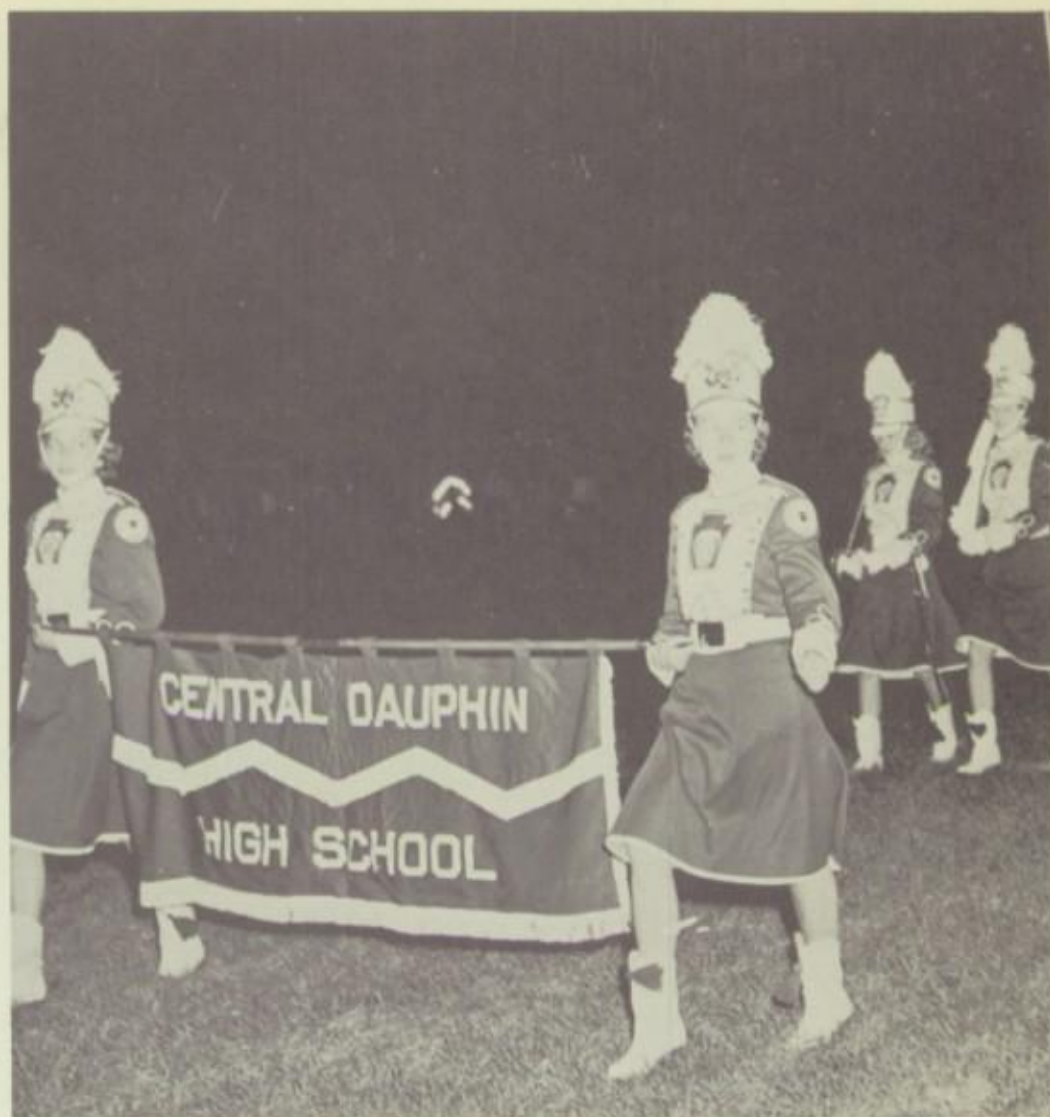

About the middle of November of our senior year, the student body elected what was known as the Temporary Student Steering Committee. They had the task of settling one of the biggest problems of Central Dauphin this year—choosing a standard class ring! The Temporary Student Steering Committee worked diligently on the school lunch problem and various other items. Those members not in the above picture are Jon Robbins, Barbara Runk, Jack Etnoyer, Ralph Mummert.

Finally, in the latter part of January, we chose the members of our permanent Student Council. They established a constitution and attempted to settle all other student problems this year.

We are grateful for the counciling of these three organizations and wish to thank them sincerely.
